CHILLS AND FEVERS.

It is seldom we see a radical cure in fever and ague, under the common treatment of quinine, arsenic, and patent medicines so highly extelled by physicians. There are objections to the general use of quinine, as some has been found to contain arsenic, and the use of it has been followed by swelling of the face, splees, liver, &c. Another objections is, the disease is very liable to recur, upon slight exposure or fatigue. The patient will find a permanent cure, or the money refunded, at the German Medical Office of Doctors BROTHERS & GRAY, opposite the Smithsonian Institution, Island.

THE WEEK: comprising the last day of the week, the first day of the week, the week completed. By the author of "The Commandment with Promise."

THIS is an excellent volume, in which are illustrated the advantages of a holy observance of the Sabbath. Various characters and scenes in humble life are introduced, and dialogues sustained, all drawn naturally and effectively. Such a book would do much good, if the humbler classes of society could be induced to read it. The pictorial illustrations are remarkably well executed.

All the fashionable Dances are taught by me as in Paris and London.

Transition Coal.

Transition Coal.

This rare and valuable Coal is a variety not quite changed into an anthracite, and it has only been discovered (in large quantities) at three places upon our globe, vis: at South Wales, Great Britain; at Bouetz, in Russia, mast the Black Sea; and at Dauphin and Lebanou counties, Pennsylvanis. In the London market this coal commands the highest price. It is now mined upon the large estate (45,000 ateres) of the Dauphin and Susquehanna Coal Gompany, situated in Pennsylvania, and it is nearer to the cities of Baltimore and Washington than the coal of any other region. For easy ignities, durability of five, complete combustion, easy adaptation to the temperature of the weather, and its great power in generating heat, it is the ness coal in the world. It has the inflammability of the bituminous coal, with the cleanliness of the authracite, and a greater durability than either. It burns without making any soot or visible smoke, and the combustion is so complete that it retains the fire until all the coal is consumed. Not so with the anthracites, especially the hard and heavy kinds. They do not burn up, and hence the common troublesome practice, of sifting their askes to obtain more fuel. In burning the Transition Coal there is no weate, for the small coals made by handling, burn as well as ordinary coal. All should be taken out.

A very erroneous impression exists with many persons that the heaved coals are the more content to the content to the them out.

A very erroneous impression exists with many persons that the heaviest coals are the most economical for ordinary purposes. This might be the case if coals were sold by measurement, but never when they are sold by whost. In Taylor's valuable work, (Statistics of Coal), the details are given to show that 31 pounds of a free-burning red sch yield ced more heat to a room in 15 hours, than 37 pounds of a heavy white ash coal, making the red ash, at $5.50, to be more economical than the white ash at $4.61 per ton. Any person accustomed to use these heavy coals will be astonished at the saving which can be made in burning the lighter kinds, when tested by the weight and burnt in a suitable manner.

ished at the saving which can be made in burning the lighter kinds, when tested by the weight and burnt in a suitable manner.

An apprehension exists with some that the free-burning coals have a tendency to clinker. Now, as a general rule, no coal will clinker unless a greater draught be applied to it than the coal naturally requires. No one would think of applying a bellows constantly to a free burning coal. But the keary white ash anthracites cannot be burnt without a powerful draft, and without using a larger quantity of coal than the temperature of the weather sometimes requires. Various patterns of stoves, furnaces, cooking ranges, &c., are invented annually to conquer this difficulty, but it has never been done with complete success. In every contrivance, however, which has been invented to burn coal, the transition variety will make a beautiful free, and no complaint will ever be made to a manufacturer or seller of grates or stoves when this coal is used. The draft alone is to be regulated by a damper. In introducing this new coal for the first time, prepared as it now is by steam power machinery for domestic use, it may give greater confidence to the buyer to say that the celebrated free-burning red ash whus in the Peach Orchard district, near Pottsville, are a continuation of the Dauphin coins, and they approach the nearest in value to the Transition coal.

Shipments of the Transition coal have already been made to the District of Columbia, and it can be obtained at retail

DISCOVERED AT LAST!

M. R. SCHLESSINGER has invented a Metallic Pen which supplies a want long existing. It is coated with gutta percha, and most effectually resists the corrosive properties of the ink, and, being pointed with platina, has all the flexfellity and smoothness so desirable in writing. It is equal in all respects to the most highly fluished diamond-pointed gold pens, and is to be had at a price so reasonable that it must come into universal use.

This highly useful and desirable pen has been tested already in this city in engrossing on parchment, and in the ordinary business writings, and its superiority is fully admitted.

WESLEY AND HIS COADJUTORS.

WESLEY AND HIS COADJUTORS.

SELDOM have I taken up a book of biography with which I have been so well pleased and really profited as with Wesley and his Coadjutors, by Prof. Larrabee. Those pure pages sparkle like diamonds, with strange as well as beautiful incidents, touching in turn every chord of the human heart, and arousing its latent energies to deeds of noble daring. Wesley is exhibited as he really was, a most wonderful man; wonderful principally as an agent of Providence in reviving pure religion in the world.

The second volume opens with Charles Wesley, that prince of lyric poets, who is made to pass before the reader so well-defined that he seems to see his form and hear his voice, and be thrilled with hissublime hymns, a rich legacy left to the Church in all after time.

Whitefield, the peerless orator and devoted Christian, next appears, with his matchless powers, arousing Great Britain and America with an eloquence and unction that literally bore down all before it, turning the people to God by thousands, till from the most degraded—degraded because forsaken of their religious teachers—plants of right-cousness were seen springing up and adorning the garden of the Lord. John Fletcher closes the list of notable worthies in the two volumes before us, and every way gorthy is he to do it. He is made to pass along in his own incomparable, beautiful simplicity, with a holiness all but superhuman, possessing talents that an angel might have envied; the acutest and ablest controversialist writer of his own or any subsequent age.—Zion's Herald.
